

Wireless Charging by LG

Written by Marco Attard
01. April 2011

LG announces its WCP-700, a wireless charging pad compatible with the company's mobile devices.

Using inductive coils built into battery doors and internal contacts allows charging from the wire-free source-- and eliminating the need for a charger.

The charging pad features audible and tactile feedback when the user places their phone on its surface, while different colour LEDs show charging status. It also comes in a slim design for users on the go.

Go LG Wireless Charging Solution