Written by Marco Attard
07. July 2017

Accessory maker Griffin announces a range of Survivor cases for the 10.5-inch iPad Pro-- the Survivor Rugged Folio, Survivor Journey Folio and Survivor Journey.

The Survivor Rugged Folio promises to be the toughest case in the lineup, with a polycarbonate exterior and a flexible TPU shell complete with stain-resistant Tactical Grip cover. It includes the Griffin impact dispersion system for drop protection (for up to 1.2m), while built-in magnets allow users to mount the iPad on most magnetic surfaces.

The Survivor Journey Folio is a folio-style case with front and back protection. Made from durable polycarbonate, it has a magetic cover customers can fold into a stand with multiple viewing and typing angles. It also protects the iPad Pro from drops up to 1.2m, and is mountable on magnetic cases.

The final case, the Survivor Journey, is the simplest and most lightweight. It protects from drops of up to 1.2m, is magnetic at the back and promises to protect against scuffs and general wear.

All three cases are shipping now.

Go Griffin Launches Range of Survivor Protective Solutions for the New 10.5-inch iPad Pro